

Why Develop Websites for the Classroom?

Web Development for Educators

Rosalind Chester

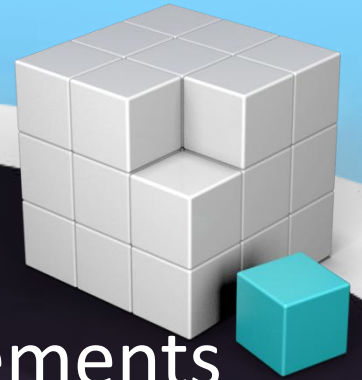

Provide 'Anytime Anywhere' Access to Learning Resources

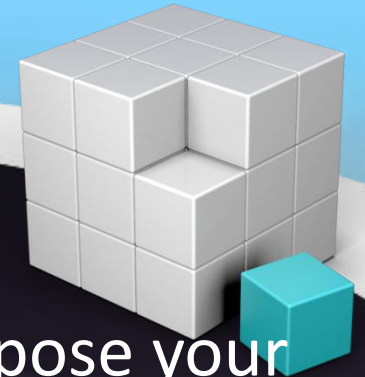

- Expand your student's exposure to learning resources that will enhance your goals and objectives and improve student achievement.
- Students absent from school will have access to current lessons, homework assignments, notes and announcements.
- Provide resources for students in need of remediation
- Provide resources for students in need of and/or desiring advanced-level practice

Communicate with Parents

- Parents can access notes and announcements
- Improve parental involvement in classroom activities

Improve Your Effectiveness as a Teacher

- Your website gives you the opportunity to expose your students to resources beyond the physical limitations of the classroom
- Provide access to the most current information available for your topic
- Encourage your students to engage in the self exploration of resources beyond the textbook

Ongoing Development of Your Digital Portfolio

- Your website is a record of your accomplishments and abilities as an educator